INTRODUCTION

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce was established in the Department of Commerce and Labor by an act of Congress, approved August 23, 1912, which provided for the consolidation within it of two units of that Department, the Bureau of Statistics and the Bureau of Manufactures. It became a part of the Department of Commerce in 1913. The general functions transferred to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce from its two predecessor agencies remained essentially the same, although the organization of the Bureau changed frequently. They included the preparation and publication of official statistics on foreign commerce and the promotion of manufacturing by the compilation of information on industries and on foreign and domestic markets. In the period 1942-46 the Bureau split into four units: the Office of International Trade, the Office of Business Economics, the Office of Business and Defense Services, and the Office of Field Services. After 1945 no Director of the Bureau was appointed, and the Bureau seems to have been discontinued after 1953. Some units, particularly the Office of International Trade and the Office of Business and Defense Services, continued to use the general files until 1958.

The records described in this inventory comprise Record Group 151, Records of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. They amount to 1,375 cubic feet, including 43 cubic feet of photographic records and 1 cubic foot of cartographic records.

Personnel folders for former employees of the Bureau are in the Federal Records Center, St. Louis, Mo.

The descriptions of the cartographic records were supplied by Charlotte M. Ashby and those of the photographic records by John E. Maddox.

Records of the Marketing Laws Survey and Its Successor, the Marketing Laws Unit

In April 1938 the Marketing Laws Survey was set up in the Works Progress Administration. Its chief function was to compile, review, and analyze all State laws and court decisions affecting the marketing of goods--from their production to their consumption. On November 6, 1941, by a Presidential letter, the work of the Survey was transferred to the Division of Regional Economy of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, where it was known as the Marketing Laws Unit. This Unit was terminated by congressional action on July 31, 1943.

A mounting interest in interstate trade barriers had led Secretary of Commerce Hopkins to set up, in December 1939, an informal Interdepartmental Committee on Interstate Trade Barriers, with the head of the Marketing Laws Survey as its chairman. The Committee seldom met. Its chief duties--cooperation with the Council of State Governments and the sponsoring of hearings of the Temporary Economic Committee--were combined with those of the Marketing Laws Survey and its successor, the Marketing Laws Unit.

The Committee on Interstate Trade Barriers and the Marketing Laws Unit arranged a Federal-State conference on war restrictions. At this conference, held from May 5 to May 7, 1942, the representatives of 47 States discussed problems arising from State and local laws and regulations considered to have a restrictive effect on the war effort. After the conference, the President established a Federal War Agencies Committee to work with the Executive Committee of the Governors' Conference in solving specific problems as they arose. This function was a continuation of a similar one that the Trade Barriers Committee had been performing for about a year. The Marketing Laws Unit, through its chief, acted for both groups. After the Marketing Laws Unit was terminated, both committees became inactive. Problems concerning restrictions on the war effort were generally referred by the operating unit (such as the War Production Board or the Office of Defense Transportation) to the Council of State Governments or to the individual States concerned.

Records of the National Committee for Wood Utilization

This Committee, a cooperative body made up of representatives of Government and private organizations, was established by President Coolidge in 1925. It was organized by Mr. Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce, who acted as its chairman until 1929. The chief function of the Committee was to bring about a wiser and more efficient use of wood and forest products. It was financed by voluntary contributions from industry. The Federal Government, however, contributed many valuable facilities and services, mainly through the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, the Bureau of Standards, and the Bureau of the Census--all bureaus of the Department of Commerce; and through the Forest Service, the Bureau of Entomology, and other units of the Department of Agriculture. On June 16, 1933, by Executive Order 6179-B, the Committee was terminated and its records and property were transferred to the Lumber Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

On November 12, 1930, President Hoover appointed a Timber Conservation Board to seek the development of "sound and workable programs of private and public effort, with a view to securing and maintaining an economic balance between production and consumption of forest products and of formulating and advancing a deliberate plan of forest conservation." The Board was formally organized on January 7, 1931, and its membership was drawn from public and private agencies. It was financed by voluntary funds contributed by interested agencies. Space and other facilities were provided by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. In 1933, when the Board had completed its work, its functions and records were transferred to the Lumber Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Its chief functions were investigating ocean mail contracts and devising policies for ocean shipping. The Committee checked on shipping rates, speeds of ships, and subsidies. DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE

CLASSIFICATION OF CORRESPONDENCE FOR FILING

FOR USE OF THE

BUREAU OF FOREIGN AND DOMESTIC COMMERCE

AND ITS DISTRICT AND FOREIGN-SERVICE OFFICES

THIRD REVISION : 1927

UNITED STATES

GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE

CLASSIFICATION OF CORRESPONDENCE FOR FILING

Expansion of the activities of the bureau has necessitated a corresponding expansion of the classification of correspondence for filing. With some exceptions, the group classifications have been adhered to; the subclassifications, however, have been considerably expanded. Papers filed in accordance with the classification of 1921 should be transferred to the new numbers in accordance with the table on page 10 and a Transfer Sheet (Form 451) filed under the former numbers to indicate that the papers have been transferred.

Some correspondence is of such a nature that it will be of no use as a permanent record. However, it must be filed so that it is available for a certain period. For this purpose a "Miscellaneous File" should be maintained in all offices. In this file should be filed all papers dealing with matters of a temporary nature. Material in this file should be filed alphabetically by name of writer or addressee—letters addressed to or written by individuals connected with firms should file under the firm name. For convenience in determining what should be destroyed in accordance with Bureau Circular No. 7, a separate miscellaneous file should be kept for each calendar year.

The person who determines the classification of the correspondence must be familiar with the classification contained in this book. He must also determine whether the paper should be filed in the miscellaneous file or in the indexed file. In doubtful cases the index in the back of the book should be consulted for the general classification of the subject. An effort has been made to assign a definite number to the various subjects in the index, but papers should not be classified from this index alone. The various subclasses in the same group should be consulted to ascertain whether the particular paper in question could not be more definitely classified under another number in the same group.

Many communications are of such character as to permit or justify filing under more than one subject, and the file clerk must arbitrarily determine under what subject they should be filed, using the classification which to him appears to be the more definite or more important. In such cases, and when the paper may be asked for or described in several different ways, it will be desirable to have a guide to the file in addition to that provided in the classification. This class of correspondence should therefore be indexed on cards. T' [illegible] by five inch ca[illegible] should be used for this purpose and they should be filed in alphabetical order according to the subject. The card should bear as a heading the subject, such as "Lumber," followed (a single space below) by a brief description of the correspondence. In the upper right-hand corner of the card should appear the number of the file, as "322."

Example: Subject card.

Lumber. Claims checking service—Claims	322 Claims
	[Date]

It is also desirable to have an index of the names of persons and firms with whom the office is corresponding. An index of the names and addresses of writers, followed by a brief description of the correspondence, as noted above, should be kept for this purpose. This index will also be an aid in cases where correspondence is asked for by name of addressee or writer only. The name cards and subject cards should be filed in different drawers. In writing the cards the first word of the brief should be the name of the secondary subject. Geographical subdivisions may properly be used as the secondary subject in cases where the correspondence covers several countries.

Example: Name card.

Jones & Co. Lumber claims checking service—	322 Claims

A card should be made for each subject or name und[illegible] the correspondence may be referred to or classified.

Until the file clerk becomes familiar with the classification, it will be a good plan to be liberal in indexing correspondence on cards. The carding can gradually be lessened as the clerk becomes familiar with the system. There are some subjects, of course, which will not need carding, such as office rent, reports, labor and wages, and postal service, because the correspondence could be classified properly under only one subject, which would in all cases be mentioned by any person desiring to obtain it from the files.

It should be borne in mind that one of the objects of filing is to have all correspondence on any one subject together in as convenient a form as possible. All material on one subject should, therefore, be filed together under the same number in chronological order, regardless of addressee or writer. To make the papers easy to handle, the correspondence under each number should be inclosed in a binder. When the binder becomes bulky, the correspondence contained therein may be split up in separate binders made for various subjects filed under one number. For example, in the bureau's file No. 322, in addition to binders for each country, correspondence is filed in separate binders under the following headings: (1) A binder covering general correspondence on the subject of lumber; (2) Chestnut lumber; (3) Correspondence regarding the bureau's claims checking service; (4) Correspondence regarding lumber contract forms; (5) Wood preservatives; (6) Yava wood. These binders are briefed and filed as follows:

1. LUMBER.
   General.
2. LUMBER.
   Chestnut.
3. LUMBER.
   Claims checking.
4. LUMBER.
   Contract forms.
5. LUMBER.
   Preservatives.
   Yava

Under certain subjects, such as trade opportunities and business adjustments, the correspondence should be filed alphabetically by name of the person or firm concerned.

When papers are inadvertently classified or filed incorrectly, and in cases where it is desired to change the classification of papers already in the files, because subsequent correspondence has changed the aspect of the matter, they should be brought together and filed properly. In such cases a transfer sheet (Form 451) should be filed in the place from which the papers are taken, indicating the number to which they have been transferred. A brief description of the papers should be made on the transfer sheet, so that the transferred material can be readily identified under both the old and the new number. Much time will be saved by adhering strictly to this practice and by correcting the cards on which the transferred correspondence has been indexed.

When correspondence in one file is related to correspondence filed under other numbers, the files should be connected by filing a cross-reference sheet (Form 74).

Some subjects will be found in correspondence that are not specifically referred to by name in the classification or the index in the back of this book. In such cases the file clerk should determine the classification by referring to a subject of a correlated or similar nature or class. In all these cases it will be necessary to index the correspondence on the 3 by 5 inch cards.

The addition of new numbers or subdivisions is absolutely prohibited. If it is thought necessary to add new numbers or subdivisions, a report should be made to the bureau for consideration.

Following is the procedure for classifying and filing correspondence; this can be varied and some of the minor details can be eliminated in the smaller offices. After proper action has been taken on any correspondence the person sending the papers to the files should initial the incoming letter in the lower right-hand corner and indicate thereon that the same is ready for filing. When the proper classification has been determined by the file clerk, the file number should be placed in the upper right-hand corner of the paper. The names and words indicating the subjects that are to be carded should be checked with blue pencil, so that the cards may be readily identified if it becomes necessary for any reason to remove or correct the cards at a future time. All necessary cards should be prepared and placed in the card index. The correspondence should then be placed in the proper file. All correspondence should be bound in the binders provided by the bureau. Until a binder becomes bulky the correspondence filed under any one number may be retained in the general binder.

No one should be permitted to remove correspondence from the files except the file clerk. Persons who take letters from the file room sign receipts (Form 33) for them. These receipts will be filed chronologically on the file clerk's desk, and if the file is not returned on the tenth day after it has been taken out a tracer (Form 207) will be sent to the person who is charged with it. This tracer should be immediately returned to the file room with the proper notation, so that the file clerk will at all times know the location of papers that are not in the file. The file clerk will also keep a record on duplicate Form 33 of all files which are charged out.

If it is desired to place correspondence in suspense so that it will come to the attention of some person on a certain date, it should be sent to the files with Form 253 attached (in duplicate). The correspondence will then be filed in the same manner as if it were not suspended, one copy of the suspense form remaining attached to the correspondence and the other copy placed in a chronological file on the file clerk's desk, filed back of a guide card bearing the date on which the correspondence is desired. When the suspense form filed at the file clerk's desk comes up, the correspondence will be sent to the person desiring it, with both copies of the suspense form attached. If he wishes to defer the suspense date, the person desiring the correspondence will change the call date on both copies of the suspense form and return the correspondence to the files.

If it is desired to have a record of the correspondence in the division files, attach Form 49 when the material is sent to the General Files. This form will be returned to the division with the number of the file, so that the material can be asked for by number. Notice on all records the Editorial Division file number and General Files number, and when asking for material mention the number under which it is filed.

BUREAU CIRCULAR NO. 53

To expedite the work of the files section, chiefs of divisions and sections are directed to bring the following to the attention of all employees of the bureau who handle correspondence, reports, and other material filed in the files section.

In addition to the instructions contained in the Correspondence Manual (pp. 23 and 24), employees of the bureau should comply with the following:

Take action on all matters coming to your desk within 48 hours after they reach you.

On all letters the subject must appear briefly at the top of the letter on a line beginning two spaces below the last line of the address.

Keep the correspondence on the subject together, so that it can easily be determined at any time what action has been taken by your division or other divisions of the bureau.

Do not hold correspondence on your desk but send it to the files section or other divisions interested immediately after action has been taken by your division. Do not hold correspondence on your desk awaiting a reply to a letter you have written.

A chronological file of all outgoing letters prepared in the various divisions should be kept to facilitate the handling of correspondence.

When sending copy of material to other divisions mark the copy plainly at the top of the paper with the number of your division followed by the number of the division for whom the copy is intended. Do not send to the files section such material received by you, but file it in your division files.

Check the reference number of your division and enter the number 12 in the reference stamp when sending material to the files, and initial the incoming letter at the lower right corner. The person whose initials appear in the lower right-hand corner is responsible for the material being in the files.

When a file is taken from the files and sent to another division, send Form 63 to the files section. This will relieve you of responsibility for the file.

Return all tracer forms (Form 207) to the files section promptly on the day they are received by you.

Do not detach any part of a file from the binder.

When you desire to take up a matter at some time in the future, do not hold correspondence on your desk, but send it to the files section with suspense sheet (Form 253) in duplicate.

If it is desired to keep a record in your division of the file number of correspondence on any subject, attach Form 49 to the correspondence when sending it to the files section. Form 49 will be returned to the division and the file can then be called for by number.

Telegrams and cablegrams referring to more than one subject should be prepared with extra copies for filing under each subject mentioned.

BUREAU CIRCULAR NO. 123

DIVISION RECORD OF INQUIRIES

In order that a more complete record may be kept of the types of service that we provide, the following files should be kept in each division:

1. Carbon copies of all outgoing letters filed alphabetically and chronologically, unless this arrangement could be improved upon for purposes of certain divisions.

2. Analyses of inquiries classified according to type of inquirer (exporter, bank, library, trade association, etc.), and also according to subject or commodity. A convenient way of doing this is to have a large sheet of cross-section paper for each month. Down the left-hand side would appear the commodities or topics handled by the division. Across the top the headings would represent classes of inquiries. The information to fill the columns could be obtained by some one from the carbon copies of outgoing letters, except for visitors and telephone calls, which would have to be recorded in some other way. These analyses to be prepared for the month of November each year.

3. A record of the inquiries from firms with which you are in more or less continuous touch. Possibly the best way of keeping this record is to place the firm's name on a 3 by 5 inch card and list on this card the date and subject of each inquiry from that firm. These cards could be filed alphabetically.

To assist the divisions and to prevent duplication of files, the following is suggested by the chief of the files section for division files:

1. Index on 3 by 5 inch cards of information available—by commodities.—Separate card for each item containing digest of information and source of information. In cases of reports received from the bureau's foreign representatives or consular officers the bureau file number should appear on the card. In cases where the information is received from clippings, trade papers, or other sources the source of the infirmation should appear on the card.

This index should not conflict with the index kept in the Editorial Division of material published in Commerce Reports but should be an enlargement of that index and contain all information available.

2. Index on 3 by 5 inch cards—by commodities—of firms interested in various commodities.—It should have a reference on the card under each commodity of every inquiry received from a firm with the date of the inquiry so that previous inquiries could be readily obtained from the files. The Exporters' Index, of course, gives ... information regarding firms interested in various commodities in a general way, but this index should show firms who are "live" on any commodity and to whom special attention should be given. It can also be used as a follow up on inquiries received from firms.

3. Index on 3 by 5 inch cards—by names—of firms interested in various commodities.—The same remarks apply to this index as to No. 2. This index will show what firms are corresponding with the bureau and what commodities they are interested in, while No. 2 index will show what firms are interested in certain commodities. The bureau file number and date of inquiry should appear on these cards the same as on the cards in the No. 2 index.

4. Letter file.—File of carbon copies of all outgoing letters written by the division. Filed alphabetically according to the name of the addressee. This file will enable the division to consult a letter to which an incoming communication is a reply and will save the time of going to the files for the previous correspondence in a great many cases. It will also show the amount and class of correspondence with any particular firm.

5. Letter size file of information available—by commodities.—(Each commodity can be subdivided by country or in any other convenient manner.) In this file should be filed carbon copies of trade letters written to private firms in the United States by the bureau's foreign representatives or consular officers, newspaper clippings, or other material on any commodity which it is desired to keep on file and for which no provision is made for filing in the Blue Book.

6. Bouquet file on 3 by 5 inch cards.—Showing by a separate card in each case what the division has accomplished to its credit. This file can be used for compiling information to be contained in the annual report or other reports showing what the division has accomplished and the extent of its work.

7. Suspense file on 3 by 5 inch cards.—To be used as a "tickler" to bring to the attention of the division any matters which have been suspended or not finally disposed of. The cards should be placed in advance dates as is done in the file section with suspense cases.
